BUFFALO WALLOW REPORT

About the most perfect weather ever (mid 40's, calm wind) was the scene for the best attended race since 1988. Add in the 15 volunteers and you can see we had a really successful race. Four new age group standards were set with Marjory Stewart and Hugh Haynes lowering their own marks, and Nancy Patton breaking Barbara Vitale's in the Half while John Rodriguez lowered the 15 and under 2 Mile mark which had stood since 1984, Race Director Ronnie Nugent would like to say thanks to volunteers; P.J. Mitchell, Larry Byrd, Brenda Martinez, Ron Key, Bob Bernero, Rudy Moreno and sons, Carlos and David, Helen Esquivel, Otto and Sue Spitz, Joe Post, Ken McEachern, and David Skelton.

YOUNG AT HEART

(The story of Johnny Kelley, Boston's Marathon Man)

by Frederick Lewis and Dick Johnson, 1992
(a Review)

One of the most amazing athletic feats is that of "old" John Kelley - now of Cape Cod, Massachusetts. He first ran the Boston Marathon in 1928. He has run it an additional 60 times.

Every four years, an Olympic marathon champion is selected. If you decided to match Kelley's Boston record, the earliest possible date to accomplish that would be April, 2053. During the period, 15 Olympic marathon gold medals would have been awarded.

This book was released this year to coincide with the 1992 Boston Marathon. What follows are "snippets" regarding various topics.

Popularity

During the 1980s, Kelley received a growing number of requests to speak at races, clinics, and receptions. This led to problems for the other John Kelleys listed in the Cape Cod telephone directory. Therefore the telephone company agreed to list him as "KELLEY, JOHN A. (MARATHON)".

Introduction

At 84, Johnny Kelley has been running for more than 70 years. "He is living testimony that remaining physically active throughout one's life is the best antidote for aging. Kelley has run the Boston Marathon for 60 years. This level of longevity sometimes diminishes attention from his performances in his earlier years. He won Boston in 1935 & 1945. He finished second seven times. He's a three time Olympian."

"Running is a way of life for me, just like brushing my teeth. If I don't run for a few days, I feel as if something's been stolen from me."

"Time marches on and here I am way up in my eighties. Jeepers, I want to run till I'm 100. People ask me about my philosophy of life. I just put one foot in front of the other and keep going."

"I look forward to my runs.. I run alone. I don't like to wait for people. It's a great way to get acquainted with yourself."

Early Years

In his early years, Kelley was not winning races, rather he ran for enjoyment. Throughout much of his "prime" competitive years, "runners were regarded as oddballs". A common comment regarding the Boston Marathon was, "It must be spring; the saps are out running again."

Kelley's parents were not supportive initially. "This was the depression. Running was something to do. There were no jobs anyway. I worked here and I worked there. There wasn't anything permanent or steady."

Early Training

In the 1930s and '40s, running was a "blue collar" activity. "Running was the working man's domain. We were looked down upon. People thought we were crazy. Now there's doctors, lawyers, male, female. Running used to be considered below the status of a professional person. The changes of the running boom have been incredible."

Marathoners in the 1930s & 1940s "ran three or four days a week, logging from 35 to 60 miles." The conventional wisdom of the day was that too many more miles would either deaden your legs on race day or damage your heart.

Kelley doesn't think he's ever run more than 60 miles in a week. He runs by the watch, never on miles. "If you said to go out and run fifteen or twenty miles, it would scare me. But two hours or an hour - I've always trained that way."

Injuries

Kelley shakes his head at all the injuries he reads about in running magazines. "Train sane. That's my motto. All these runners that do 120 miles a week, they eventually run into trouble. Jeppers! They run everyday. I believe that if you're tired you should take a day off."

Advice

At race clinics, Kelley speaks of "Mr. K's three Ds - Desire, Determination and Dedication. You don't have to run a marathon to be in shape. The heck with the marathon. It's important not to be a couch potato. We don't wear out, we rust out. Do something. Walking, biking, whatever. I do some swimming myself."

Recommendation

Not being full of technical advice, the book is easily read. If you are not personally familiar with New England and its "running culture", the book may have limited appeal. However, I recommend you buy the book now anyway. The April 15, 1996 Boston Marathon will be the 100th. I'm betting Johnny Kelley will be there and he can autograph your copy!

W.T.R.C. SPECIAL REPORTNew York City Marathon
by Carlos D. Vigil

For most of us, we know the challenge that training and running a marathon takes. Then, when the challenge is the 23rd running of the New York City Marathon it seems like a much greater deed.

Johnny was paired with P.J. Mitchell and Lawrence with Carlos Vigil. We raised funds for the trip and used the profits from the annual Moonlight Run to provide whatever was needed for the trip.

So, for Lawrence Nelson and Johnny Martinez, it was more than running a marathon and more than traveling to the Big Apple. For them, it was all these challenges plus a major step towards more social independence.

If you haven't been to the Big Apple, New York is just as it is portrayed on television and the movies. Everyone should experience it at least once. The running of the marathon is unlike any race you've ever run. The City, crowds, sites and the adrenaline rush that flows through your veins as you accept the fact of running the 23rd staging of the most historic marathon. This event was the first where Fred Lebow, founder of the New York City Marathon, ran after his bout with cancer and the first where the Achilles Track Club was represented by over 140 participants and the first where two Lubbockites were represented. Lawrence and Johnny would have never dreamt in their wildest dream of running a marathon, much less the New York City Marathon. It was a privilege and an honor to have accompanied them.

Lawrence and Johnny are Achilles Track Club members and have run road races before. The two months before the marathon they trained with the West Texas Running Club adding long distance runs on Sundays at Mackenzie Park.

When you have goals, dreams and aspirations anything is possible, and we had those. There were skeptics whose support we did not have but the expectations had been raised and we were going to follow through. It is sometimes difficult to see hidden objectives due to superficial thinking but our running the New York Marathon was for that of participation and support for other Achilles runners. We were there to prove that physically or mentally challenged people in our society are as individual and as much a part of our social fabric as persons without limitations. Against all odds, everyone is entitled to participate in whichever endeavor they feel they want to belong. Whether it took three hours or eight hours, this should not be the measure of competition but the fact that Lawrence and Johnny participated with courage and determination is an accomplishment in itself. For those of us who have run and those of you who haven't run marathons, we know the commitment and the anguish the training and the run entails. Unless running is your lively hood, we should examine our goals and objectives and on a kinder and gentler approach, examine those goals and objectives of others with respect and admiration.

Keeping together is progress...
Working together is success.*"

Our thanks and appreciation go to all of our West Texas Running Club friends for helping fulfill a dream, to participate in a historic event and promote running for all of us.

NEWS AND NOTES

MEMBERSHIP RENEWAL TIME

Enclosed in this newsletter are newly designed membership forms. (Thanks to Jostie Aleman for the word processing assistance) Notice that each individual must have a form and waiver signed. This will allow better data base collection for the RUNSCORE computer program. Hopefully we will be able to assign a permanent "race number" to all who routinely run in the club races and this will speed up the pre race sign up process. Also please notice the expanded volunteer opportunities which we hope will get more people involved in the ongoing activities of the club. Be sure to check at least one of the choices. We will try to have enough forms in the newsletter for each family member but if there are not, please feel free to copy the form (back too). Help keep the club's cost down by renewing early or saving the forms if you don't keep the newsletter. Also enclosed is a survey form for your input on club activities. Please take the time to give your evaluation.
